CONCLUSION.

Our schools during the past year have progressed with thler usual success, and when we compare tgem with schools in many other towns we are confident they occupy a rank which is highly gratifying. We have among our teaching force several teachers who take hold of the work as though they were in the school room for the sole purpose of doing their very best for the pupils under their care and instruction, and not merely to earn a few dollars. This we consider the desirable type of teacher to employ. No teachers should ever become passive or satisfied, but should avail themselves of every possible opportunity for a better fitting for their important work. In looking over the school work for the year we find that advancement has been made and pupils who were willing to apply themselves to study have enjoyed a profitable year. There has been a willingness on the part of the pupils to cooperate with the teachers in methods of instruction and discipline and an unusual interest has been manifested by the teachers.

We employed three inexperienced teachers, Miss Beatrice E. Hodgkins, Miss Margaret E. King and Mr. Merl Tarr. They did good work, and no doubt will make profitable teachers.

The Fall and Winter terms of Free High Schools were under the charge of Mr. D. Herman Corson who possesses excellent qualifications and abilities for teaching. Mr. Corson maintains the best of discipline, giving thorough practical instruction, and his pupils made good advancement.

The Spring term of Free High School is now in session under the instruction of Mr. W. F. Packard. Mr. Packard comes highly recommended, and the school opened with about thirty pupils, with every prospect of a successful term.

In conclusion, we would say we have used our best judgment in managing your schools, and thank you for your support and respect.

Respectfully submitted,

LESLIE LEWIS, Supt.
